This event last for five days i.e. from 16th January 2017 to 20th January 2017. For each five days we had a different theme of activity.

FIRST DAY (16th January 2017)

First day of event began with lightening of lamp and Saraswati Vandana with the arrival of an eminent theatre artist Mr. Deepak Sharma, Assistant Professor of Cultural Resources And Training (CCRT). He was honored with the gracious words and greetings of flowers by our principal ma'am.

He started with little of his biodata and introduction of his work life in theatres. He told us about all the essential aspects required in an appropriate drama, such as

- Angik: Body Language
- Aharik: Modulation
- Chintan: Expressions & Emotions
- Vachik: Dialogue Delivery
- Satvik: Experience

After this, he enacted short scenes of different characters from some of the most successful dramas. Through his acting and knowledge about drama, delegates came to learn that how an individual can play a powerful character by his strong expressions and gestures. He told us different ways to present ourselves clearly and confidently in front of large number of people. He called out some people present over there to give their introduction in a unique manner. By this activity, the hidden talent of acting came out from pupil teachers and they showcase it in front of everyone without hesitation. Different kind of uniqueness that evolved out from students made them more creative and skillful. The skill of acting made us more confident and demonstrative so that we can face different type of situations with an ease. Pupil teachers can use these skills in future by narrating the stories in more dramatic or artistic way. Drama studies also encourage team work, co-operation, motivation and discipline as students from diverse backgrounds come together to achieve a common goal. The factors of drama helped pupil teachers to express and present themselves more vividly in front of large numbers. By Summarizing, all that he showered on us, the day ended up with this event of drama and theatre. At the end, Ms. Shipra Das, Assistant Professor, SRITE thanked him for being such an amazing educator and true inspiration for the delegates.

Furthermore, she told us the technique of making sand dough by which she made many different objects. Firstly she made a birthday cake and asked delegates to do the same, then she taught us to make model of Ganapati. She performed this activity step by step and gave instructions simultaneously. She asked us to follow the instructions and make the desired object accordingly. Different techniques of making clay models motivated us to use these techniques in making aesthetic decorative material. A good art teacher strives to have students that produce work. In each class that is unique. She didn't want us to be afraid of failure, but have the tenacity of an inventor. She explored the talent of fine art within the delegates and helped them to have a clear hand over their work. Her lecture/guidance with politeness motivated delegates to explore something more creative and innovative.

She was so fine in her work that she manipulated the clay into the shape desired. She also briefed us about the requirements for her models of clay. These tools came in various shapes, size and styles and used to create a specific effect. Delegates who were fine at art and craft got the platform to enhance their talent and skills. Clay modeling has the ability to streamline creative functioning area of the brain, like imagination, holistic approach and hand eye movement coordination. The Resource Person tell us about all the different procedures through which we can cut, scrap or shape the modeling material and create something very unique out of it.
